Biography

Stephanie L. Bowlby is Partner at DeHay & Elliston, overseeing the day to day operations in the Los Angeles office and a seasoned litigator and aggressive advocate on behalf of clients involved in commercial litigation, complex toxic torts, catastrophic injury, products liability and premises liability matters. Her experience also reaches into the areas of international law, entertainment law, family law, medical malpractice and immigration; as well as having performed pro bono work in some of these areas. Stephanie immerses herself in her clients' businesses, as well as the facts and law in each case. She has experience, with a successful track record, in all stages of litigation beginning at the initiation of a lawsuit or appeal through trial in both State and Federal Courts.

Stephanie combines her extensive legal experience with creative problem-solving to give her clients the advantage of an attorney who is an effective and aggressive advocate. It is Stephanie's mission in each matter to obtain positive results for her clients.
